The WeGOJA Foundation is seeking an Arts Educator to promote and offer an extra-curricular program at South Carolina colleges and universities in the 2022-23 academic year, that teaches education students how to incorporate African American heritage into classroom instruction. The subject of interest would be the arts and its application across multiple subjects and disciplines.

Founded in 2008, the WeGOJA Foundation is a nonprofit 501c3 organization that advocates for African American historic preservation, and has a successful record of helping teachers connect curriculum-based lessons with real-life examples found in the state's rich history.

The Arts Educator will be responsible for:

- Building interest in the program via presentations at colleges and universities in the fall of 2022.
- Scheduling webinars in the winter/spring of 2023, and inviting / hosting guest lecturers when practical.
- Managing a list of students in the program, including tracking their attendance and completion of a curriculum-based assignment at the end of the spring semester in 2023.
- Budgeting for materials and other expenses, and then managing expenses in a process to be determined by the WeGOJA Foundation.
- Monthly reports on project progress.
- A final report submitted by June 15, 2023.

Successful metrics will include:

- Aggressive and creative promotion of the opportunity at all colleges/universities in South Carolina that offer education courses, to build interest and registration. Meet the students where they're communicating, including chat rooms/boards, social media, student networks, etc., including at least eight (8) campus visits, reminding them the program comes with a $250 stipend per student.
- At least 20 but no more than 30 students registered for, and fully completing, the program.
- Ensuring geographic and racial diversity by delivering the opportunity to students enrolled in three or more colleges or universities in the state, one of which should be an HBCU.
- At least eight (8) webinars in the winter/spring 2023 semesters that offer creative and innovative ways to incorporate African American history into curriculum based lesson plans.
- Working within the operations budget.

No fringe benefits are offered in this independent contractual arrangement. The contract is dependent on availability of grant funding.

Preferred candidates would have 3-5 years' experience in art education and be nationally board certified. All eligible candidates can complete the application form below and return to WeGOJA Executive Director Dawn Dawson-House at WeGOJAexecdir@gmail.com by midnight on Tuesday, August 16, 2022. They can also mail material to WeGOJA Foundation, PO Box 290326, Columbia, SC 29229.
